While there does appear to be some overlap between Eurocentric models of structural determinants and those presented by Aboriginal scholars DuHamel, ; Thomas, such as education, income and diet, this article proposes that to adequately address determinants faced by Aboriginal youth, a framework that is culturally appropriate and addresses colonization needs to be implemented. What supports do Aboriginal parents, families and communities need to raise children? However, they also stated that it was good to get served by both Aboriginal and First, youth concurred that permanency planning should be key, ensuring that workers try to keep children with family members. When asked about the reasons for moving back and forth between biological and foster homes, youth explained that when a biological parent complied with the demands of child welfare, such as staying in counseling for a long enough time period or attending a substance abuse treatment program, they were able to go back to these parents. The majority of the youth reported as heterosexual. Although some youth disa of a three month follow-up. The article then uses a culture-based research methodology to report on the findings of the project that was conducted with homeless Aboriginal youth in Toronto.
