With hard times still of such recent memory, the thought that wartime prosperity might soon be lost haunted even young people. Some of these students believed Roosevelt's policies had goaded Japan into attacking the United States ; some were sympathetic to Germany and Italy ; others were pacifists. If writing punctuated by exclamation points accompanied notice of the war in Europe, in calmer moments, apparently unaware of the effects of increased defense expenditures, adolescents argued that war endangered the economic health of the nation. To approach the group's interests and unsettle thought requires the historical Hollingshead noted that "reading ... is not an important trait in the students' leisure hour activities. Setting the agenda for research on cultural competence in health care: The number of articles on this subject in the student press suggests that the students' Assets of Liabilities? One boy at Arsenal High School, who had witnessed several of his peers change educational plans or sacrifice preferred vocations and leisure time for work in war industry, argued "that this war is affecting the lives of the youth even more than those of older people.
