Wolfe eschews "made up" words in favor of archaic or obscure words. At first the story appears to be set in your typical fantasy cod-medieval Europe.

From the Place in the Valley Deep in the Forest. Unable to find Agia, Severian

However, I think I need some brain candy after this series.

The writing style is not that of a typical genre book; rather, it reads more like the memoirs of a prophet, and, as I've said, carries a distinctly biblical tone.

He also learns that he possesses healing power that he once attributed to the Cl lends itself to more than one reading and many people have told me that they have gotten a lot out of a second or even third read of the Book of the New Sun. While recovering, Severian judges a story telling contest.
