This idea has had enormous influence on feminist philosophers and queer theorists. In Ideas, Concepts, and Reality John Burbidge adopts, as a starting point, Gottlob Frege's distinction between "ideas," which are subjective recollections of past sensations, and "concepts," which are shared by many and make communication possible.

These seem to show weaknesses or vagueness in Aristotelian induction. For example, naturalism attempts to explain knowledge in terms of natural science physics, biology while Marxism appeals to historical social sciences. Montreal and Kingston, Ont.:
